£115m bill for Supertram

A bill for £115m for the Sheffield Supertram has been laid at the door of four South Yorkshire councils. A High Court judgement has ruled that the Government was not responsible for meeting the construction costs of the system. The cost will have to be met by Sheffield City Council and the metropolitan boroughs of Barnsley, Doncaster and Rotherham. Council rate payers in the area could find themselves facing additional charges of £40 per year for the next 30 years unless the decision is overturned by the appeal courts.

Hyslop moves to Chester

Chester City Transport has confirmed that Stuart Hyslop has been appointed as managing director. He replaces David Clark who is retiring after 25 years with the company. Stuart has gained a wide experience of the industry through senior positions with Chesterfield and Hull, and most recently with Skills of Nottingham. He takes up the Chester City post at a date yet to be finalised but no later than 1 April.

Oliver leaves VI

Ron Oliver, chief executive of the Vehicle Inspectorate, is leaving the industry to set up a consultancy agency with his wife. He has been head of the VI for 13 years and its chief executive for the last ten. He is to be replaced by Maurice Newey, who was director of central services at the DoT prior to its merger with Environment & the Regions. Maurice has agreed to take on the post for at least 12 months, making time for the Driver, Vehicle and Operator review to be completed.

Stakeholding partnerships offer sustainable growth

A paper by Professor David Begg, chair of The Robert Gordon University, and Colin Smith, honorary research fellow, department of geography, University of Aberdeen, proposes innovative stakeholding partnerships to reverse the decline in bus patronage. The paper has been published in advance of the Government's White Paper in May and analyses the impact of bus deregulation. It recommends new policy measures to encourage people to take to the buses.

One of the main claims is that innovative stakeholding partnerships should be developed between local government, bus operators, their employees and passengers, which would encourage market growth. It refutes claims that deregulation is the main reason for the relentless growth in car ownership and subsequent decline in patronage, noting that passenger numbers are down 23% since deregulation, which is consistent with long term decline since the mid-50s. Other contributing factors are land use planning policies that discriminate against bus use and fiscal policies which make motoring more price competitive than buses. Fares have increased by 55% in real terms against a 2.0% drop in motoring costs.

The report says the percentage decline in passengers is matched by a similar percentage increase in the number of buses, resulting in more empty seats and a higher fares burden imposed on passengers. The doubling of fuel prices has also had a serious effect along with the prohibiting of subsidies for fares. Take-overs and mergers within the industry are also cited as bad for competition now that major groups are tending to avoid direct competition and have the potential to charge monopoly fares. (Stagecoach and FirstGroup being a notable exception in some areas of Scotland.)

In order to reduce fares, the report proposes schemes such as the Red Routes in London and Greenways in Edinburgh because they can improve journey time, increase operational efficiency and boost passenger numbers - leading to lower costs and higher revenue which should result in a reduction in fares in real terms. It calls for exemption for the industry for any further increases in tax on fuel and the appointment of a bus regulator to ensure companies with a monopoly do not charge excessive fares.

Bus drivers feature prominently and their position has been carefully considered. In recent years they have experienced a decline in living standards and over the last ten years their wages have fallen by more than nine percent - compared with other occupations which had increased by an average 25%. Driver remuneration averaged £243 per week against the national average of £336 and most worked 20% longer to achieve this. With the White Paper on Transport to be published in May, outlining key measures for buses in an attempt to reduce car use, the paper anticipates a major expansion in the size of the bus market and the number of drivers employed. In a competitive market, their wages would have to rise if new recruits are to be attracted.

Professor Begg, an advisor to deputy PM John Prescott, says that where deregulation has clearly failed, local authorities should be given the power to apply to the Transport Secretary to determine the best interests of passengers and decide whether to introduce regulation. He maintained the four stakeholders in the future were passengers, companies, local authorities and employees - all having an incentive to see a growing bus market and a need to co-operate to achieve it. Copies of the paper can be obtained, priced at £25, from Brian Weddell, Scottish Transport Studies Group, Redwood House, 66 Spylaw Road, Edinburgh.

Optare ... The bus stops here.

Len Atkinson has the most boring job in the world but he doesn't mind because he's a detail man, which suits us because Optare's a detail company. From the moment the build team starts in our one-stop shop, Len is over their shoulders making sure that the screws are screwed in tight, and the bolts are bolted on right. So that when it comes to the final inspection Len knows, and the build team knows, that the quality and reliability associated with the Optare name will never be tarnished.

That's why you'll find us very rewarding people to do business with. At Optare quality is not just a promise it's a fact. Every vehicle we build exceeds the industry's most stringent controls. What's more the quality of our product is exceeded only by that of our service.

Try us and you'll understand why, when it comes to leading edge bus solutions, there's no stopping us.

OPTIMUM, THAT'S OPTARE

SVL 2000

New SVL 2000e takes the mobile lift concept into the next millennium. Portability is now even easier and to optimise under vehicle access we have increased the standard lift height from 1.6m to 1.8m to accommodate super low floor buses and integral coaches. But the really important new features are the built-in synchronisation and fault finding diagnostics with electronic control panel mounted LCD screen for the ultimate in operator efficiency and safety.

Other features include:

- ♦ Self sustaining load and safety nut for guaranteed operator safety
- ♦ Automatic stop if any obstruction encountered
- ♦ Key operated over-ride for added operator safety
- ♦ Upgradeable to six column set for multi-axle vehicles.

Changing attitudes to clean fuel

The results of a survey carried out by Powershift at last year's Motor Show clearly indicate a public awareness about clean fuel. Although the survey was aimed at car users it found 82% of respondents expected to be driving gas or electric vehicles by 2010. The report says that conversion on this scale could result in up to 24% reduction in the UK's road transport emissions of carbon dioxide at 1990 traffic levels and a 5.5% reduction in total UK emissions - above the 5.2% average reduction agreed at Kyoto.

Other findings were: 90% of people believed clean fuelled vehicles were better for the environment than petrol of diesel; 86% believed clean vehicles played an important part in improving health; 88% claimed they would be willing to convert to clean fuelled vehicles if the fuels were cheaper and the capital cost of the vehicles lower; 90% were not satisfied the government was doing enough to encourage the take-up of clean vehicles (since the survey the Government has created the Clean Fuel Vehicles Task Force and its commitment to extending their use in the Government Car Service); and 79% would be prepared to invest in a conversion or a clean fuelled vehicle if a preferential free parking system was introduced.

Commenting on the results, Dr Eowin Lees, chief executive of the Energy Saving Trust, said: 'At this year's London Motor Show, I challenged vehicle manufacturers to produce more clean fuel vehicles. These findings provide all the encouragement they need. There can be no more excuses.'

Transport Minister Gavin Strang has applied for parliamentary powers to introduce a fee to cover the cost of vehicle registration from 1 April 1998. The proposed fee, said to be around £25, is

DETR support GB Bus Timetable

The Great Britain Bus Timetable, published by Southern Vectis, has been granted support of £25,000 from the Department of the Environment, Transport & the Regions towards distribution costs. A letter from the DETR confirming the sum stated the Government's belief that the provision of integrated transport could potentially be a major influence in achieving a modal shift to public transport. The production of the GBBT is already supported by the five major bus operators in the UK. Stuart Linn, group managing director of Southern Vectis, said the DETR payment was a valuable addition to the sponsorship of the GBBT and vital to its success was their ability to reach as wide an audience as possible, including new customers.

Dennis Trident

Dennis unveils two axle low floor double decker

Think you've heard the name Trident before - you have - but read on because Dennis has just launched another one. First came the three axle Trident with in-line drive which is proving extremely popular in Hong Kong. Now the Trident low floor double decker family has grown to include a model which meets the needs of the home market, a two axle chassis designed to carry either 9.9 or 10.45 metre bodywork, depending on wheelbase.

Three axle Tridents are already in service in Hong Kong and UK operators got the chance to look at what Far Eastern passengers are experiencing when examples were exhibited at Coach & Bus '97. Artist's impressions of the new two axle Trident were released at that time, as was news of a 100 vehicle order from Stagecoach, but it was only last week that the press got their first opportunity to inspect what promises to be a crucial model for Dennis and, if the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act are to be met, UK operators.

Though they share the same name, the two axle Trident is very different to the three axle model. For a start it's wider at 2.55 metres rather than 2.50 which will give some useful extra aisle space. The biggest difference is in the layout of the driveline for which Dennis has moved away from an in-line engine and T-drive configuration to a transverse layout with an angle drive, in order to give a sufficiently short rear overhang and overall length. Retaining an in-line layout would have made the Trident at least half a metre longer, and that distance makes a great deal of difference, especially in the city centres where most Tridents will be earning their keep.

Dennis looked at a number of possible driveline layouts before opting for the transverse solution, but whichever

The two axle Trident chassis is 2.55 metres wide and is offered with two wheelbase lengths to give an overall bodied length of either 9.9 or 10.45 metres. Here the impressive 55 degree steering lock is demonstrated.

way they looked at it it was impossible to incorporate a T drive without a sloping floor, without a rear outswing problem and within a package that would make bodying vehicles in lowbridge format possible. The availability of lowbridge bodywork is becoming increasingly important for the big groups who want flexibility within their operation and the ability to penetrate as wide a geographical area as possible. The more radical approach of putting the engine and T drive within the wheelbase would not have left sufficient room to place the staircase above it and would have congested the centre low floor area.

An advantage of the transverse layout is increased capacity because the body-builder does not have to body up to a bulkhead and seats can be placed above the engine. The engine can also be mounted lower to help with stability. As sales director, Roger Heard commented, 'The shorter we keep the the rear overhang, the lower the engine can be mounted. The further it goes back, the higher the engine has to be mounted to maintain an eight degree departure angle.'

Trident has a flat step-free gangway floor from front to rear. The step ride height is 325mm but this drops to 250mm with the aid of the kneeling front suspension which is standard. Doors can be positioned virtually wherever they are likely to be required and there is the option of full lowering of the air suspension on both axles for operators specifying a centre door. Dennis have designed the frame to accept a cassette ramp at the centre door if required.

Mechanical specification

Not only do the UK and Hong Kong versions of the Trident have different configurations, the engines too, are different, though both are manufactured by Cummins. Powering the two axle Trident is the 8.27 litre C series which is both turbocharged and inter-cooled. Standard is the C220-20 which produces 220bhp (162kW) at 2200rpm and torque of 800Nm (590lb/ft) at 1400rpm. A more powerful option which Dennis believe will only be necessary for vehicles venturing beyond city work is the C245.20 which offers 245bhp at 2200rpm and 1025Nm at 1400rpm. In contrast the three axle Trident is propelled by a 10.8 litre, 305bhp M11 unit. The standard length is 12.0 metres but a 10.6 metre long version has already been built for Citybus which could not take a two axle vehicle of this length because of the twin requirements of air conditioning and an overall width of 2.50 metres.

Gearbox options for the UK will be either the Voith D851.3 or ZF's Ecomat 4HP500 or 5HP500 with an 80 degree dropped angle drive.

To add to Trident's manoeuvrability in traffic it has a steering lock angle of 55 degrees, a full two degrees better than the Dart SLF. The steering wheel is the same 460mm diameter unit used on the Dart SLF and is adjustable for height and rake. Steering gear is the well known ZF8098 integrally powered system. With a design load capacity of 7500kg, the front axle is the S75ULF from Kirkstall, which is incidentally Dennis's longest serving supplier. In practice the capacity is limited to 6300kg or 6930kg on buses limited to 50mph for urban work. At the rear the axle is the ZF AV-132 drop centre unit with a design load capacity of 11,500kg. Though the design load capacity is 18,500kg, the plated weight is 17,000kg (6300/10,500) although this should rise to 18,000kg (6300/11,500) from January 1999. Rear axle ratios depend on the gearbox selection, that with the Voith D851.3 being 5.13:1 to give a maximum of 48mph, while the ZF Ecomat ratio of 5.74:1 gives 46mph in fourth and 56mph in fifth.

Both axle variants share a similar front end layout and have modular frames built of welded steel channel and rectangular sections. Though the three axle has body bracing for delivery runs the two axle chassis is entirely self supporting. It has constant front and rear frame overhangs of 2150mm and 2288mm respectively with a wheelbase of either 5250mm or 5800mm depending on whether the body is to be 9.9 or 10.45m long. To keep things straightforward for bodybuilders, key ancillaries including the fuel tank will be incorporated at the spare wheel and tyre, auto chassis lube and a hand held diagnostic unit for the electrical circuits.

Bodies

It is already clear that the UK's bodybuilders see the Trident as a horse worth back-a chassis is scheduled to go to Blackburn within the next couple of weeks. Alexander will be employing the new ALX400 while for its part Plaxton/Northern Counties will offer the President design first seen at the NEC last September. Chris Clark, MD of East Lancs happened to be visiting Guildford when we called and he said of the Trident, 'It's a bodybuilders dream. We can put the floor on the chassis, without the need to build a subframe.'

Trident can be bodied to either low or full height and Dennis claim that, 'headroom in a low-height Trident will be similar to that in current generation full-height double deckers.'

Alexander is already well into its stride bodying three axle Tridents, one of which destined for the Long Win subsidiary of KMB was available at the launch for inspection, as well as a test ride. Dennis subsidiary Duple Metsec is also bodying three axle Tridents with batches being assembled by both Salvador Caetano and East Lancs.

On the ALX500 the non-moquette seat trim was a little unfriendly compared with UK interior specifications, but it was otherwise clear that Hong Kong passengers receive a very high degree of comfort that includes air conditioning, plenty of stanchions, a wheelchair bay, a powered entrance ramp and lots of straphangers. What really impressed about the Trident once it was out on the road was its stability in all situations including very sharp corners. Dennis research & development manager, Paul Bromley, confirmed that it had been tilted to 31 degrees.

New factory

To cope with the demand for its products and to increase its capacity to further penetrate world markets, Dennis has opened a major extension to its main factory complex in Dennis Way. The extra 45,000 square feet of production space will increase the capacity of the plant from the existing 2,000 units a year to approximately 3,000 a year.

Within the new facility, which incorporates state of the art filtration and environmental systems, there are paint and chassis protection booths running along one side with chassis construction occupying the bulk of the available room. Massive overhead cranes running on solid wheels rather than tracks carry the chassis between the different construction stages. The versatility of the plant is illustrated by the fact that in successive bays it was possible to see a Super Pointer Dart being constructed complete with the the sloping underframe for its Pointer body, a Javelin coach chassis and the all Cromwell underframe for a Rapier fire appliance. In the line opposite Tridents were taking shape. Primer is applied using an electrostatic process to ensure complete coverage and all joints in which water might otherwise collect are sealed prior to the application of the Mebon protective coating.

The final stage of the investment will see the conversion of an existing workshop which houses a paint facility into a dynamometer shop for testing chassis prior to despatch. At present this type of testing is undertaken on the roads around Guildford. When it opens in July 1998 testing on site will enable a bank of very precise data to be built up, will relieve congestion locally and will make the construction process simpler and cleaner.

In the past 12 months Dennis has produced just short of 2000 vehicles (including 140 fire engines) so the investment was clearly necessary. Current production levels call for 52 chassis a week during January and February, the highest figure yet achieved being the 256 chassis which left the plant last July. Order for Hong Kong account for 12 Tridents and three Dragons a week at present, the Dragons being, almost certainly, the last of the type to be built and also the last bolted construction Dennis chassis. Initially it took 400 hours to build a three axle Trident and that time has already come down to 253 hours and will be further reduced for two axle examples.

Summary

So there you have it, two buses from the same stable,

Tridents have already attracted over 700 firm orders or letters of intent to purchase which, in addition to ongoing orders for both the Dragon and Arrow double deckers, should mean that the Dennis share of a world double deck market long dominated by the Capital Citybus, but Roger Heard believes its future will be limited. 'Trident will effectively replace Arrow because of the benefits it brings and because the market will go low floor,' he said. The first production chassis will be completed towards the end of the year and the first vehicles are expected to enter service around the new year. A chassis price has not been revealed but it is understood to be around £4,000 more than an Arrow. A total cost of £123,000 for a bodied two axle Trident was mentioned.

I was not the only one at the launch to think that calling two such different buses by the same name will confuse customers and be a nightmare for the parts department in years to come. Someone suggested calling the two axle version the Bident, someone else the Loline, but whatever it is called, orders already taken suggest that Dennis has once again managed to come up with the right bus at the right time. This has become something of a habit for Dennis, who followed the spectacularly successful Dart with the equally popular Dart SLF. The recently published SMMT registration figures show that in 1997 Dennis registered 1078 Dart SLFs against a combined total of 689 low floor buses from all the other manufacturers. Demand for double deckers is not such that success for the two axle Trident will generate the same level of business that the Dart SLF has done, but it does give the Guildford manufacturer a very convincing low floor product line-up.

Setra Open Days

Operators looking to augment their fleet for the 1998 season were given an early opportunity to inspect some of the vehicles on offer when EvoBus (UK) Ltd, held a series of Open Days between January 14 and 17. The Lincoln premises are home to the Setra part of the Evobus empire and among close to 50 vehicles present were both new and used Setra coaches as well as over 30 used coaches of Volvo, Scania, Mercedes, MAN, LAG, DAF and Leyland manufacture. While managing director, Jim Shuttleworth, and his team were happy to take orders for new Setra S250 Specials and did so, the main reason for the Open Days was to give a boost to used vehicle sales.

Jim explained why the event had been held, 'We think this is a good time. Now's the time the market needs some stimulation. I think we're the first to do it in January.' He believes the new and used markets are different in that, 'On the new side, the number of buyers is much lower and deals are coming further and further forward.' Of the used market he said, 'We've got to do something to help encourage the market into buying mode. It's been static too long.'

To help make the visit more enjoyable excellent refreshments were provided through the day, the normally busy workshops having been converted to a restaurant with tables in the centre and a selection of used coaches around them. I visited Lincoln on the first of the four days when around 60 people from throughout the country had also made the trip. Over the four days, around 200 operators called with the Saturday particularly busy.

Prices listed in the used stock list ranged from £17,500 for a 1984 Leyland Royal Tiger Doyen to £155,000 for a 1993 Scania K113 triaxle with particularly well appointed Van Hool Alizee coachwork including 49 Royal Class recliners. In common with other dealers Evobus has quite a number of late model vehicles in stock including 1994 Volvo B10M Plaxton Premiere 350s with 50 recliners, toilet, air conditioning and double glazing at £129,500, 1994 Volvo B10M Jonckheere Deauville with 49 recliners and rear toilets and well specified Scania K113CRB Irizar Centuries of the same age with 49 recliners at £130,000. Most of the vehicles on offer appeared to be to standard specifications, the only unusual item being a 1986 LAG Panoramic kitchen coach which had been extensively refurbished including a complete retrim to the 27 recliners, on offer at £42,000. This was among the vehicles to find new owners.

Used Setras varied in price from £29,000 for a 1982 S215HU to £140,000 for one of four 1993(K) S215HD 49 seaters. There were no secondhand S250s available, indeed Jim has only had one pre-owned S250 to sell to date. Two S215HDs and two S215HRs were among the vehicles sold which provides further evidence of the marque's appeal in the used market.

Though list prices have been quoted, the pre-event publicity promised special offers and fabulous New Year bargains and these were to be had. 'All deals are realistic,' said Jim, 'We are keen to discuss.' He admitted he was particularly keen on straight deals and said that he found operators liked buying from Evobus. 'It's not just what you pay for a vehicle,' he said, 'it's the preparation, the condition and the support you get afterwards.'

As previously mentioned, there was also interest in new Setra S250 Specials with several present - complete with sold stickers in the windows. Both Mercedes Benz and MAN engined examples producing 381 and 401bhp respectively are available for 1998, and both are also now available with Mercedes six speed manual transmissions as an alternative to the current eight speed units. Another attraction was the availability of special prices on a number of parts including Webastos.

Jim Shuttleworth was pleased with the way the event had gone and thought another event of a similar nature would be worthwhile, possibly in the not too distant future. When I telephoned on the following Monday morning he was able to confirm sales of eight used and two new coaches with serious discussions continuing on a number of other deals which remained subject to finance and inspection of part exchange vehicles. 'Reaction has been very positive,' he said, 'Many visitors complemented us on our presentation. People thought it was a good time to have the event and they found the trip worthwhile.'

Whyte's Coach Tours, Aberdeen A full house for Caetano

On 12 January Salvador Caetano (UK)'s Executive Marketing Director Alan Page officially handed over four new Caetano Algarve 2 Volvo B10Ms to William (Bill) Whyte Snr of Whyte's Coach Tours of Newmachar near Aberdeen. It was a significant event for a number of reasons. Bill Whyte officially retired just before Christmas, 30 years after starting the business and has left it in the hands of a new generation of the family, son William J., and son-in-law and daughter Ian and Linda Urquhart. This is also the fourth year that the respected Scottish firm has bought new Algarve 2s from Salvador Caetano (UK) with the result that its entire big coach fleet line up is now Algarve 2, no less than 14 vehicles.

The Blue Star Band

Whyte's Coach Tours can trace its origins to Bill's interest in music. For many years he played in dance bands in the North East of Scotland. In 1951 he left Fraserburgh to work as a driver at Kingseat Hospital, Aberdeen. It was not long before he joined the hospital band and played in bothy-nights on Grampian Television. William formed his own band, The Blue Star Band, in 1955 which played in venues across Aberdeenshire, Kincardineshire and Angus from Nairn in the north to Dundee in the south. Members used to transport the band equipment in their own cars, but in 1966 Bill bought a 12 seater non-PSV Bedford minibus for the purpose. The following year he was approached by Aberdeen County Council who offered a contract to take a small number of children from Newmachar and Dyce to St Andrew's School at Inverurie. Numbers grew and there was a need for a PSV which duly arrived in the shape of another 12 seater Bedford costing £45.

The business steadily grew

with taxi work supplementing the minibus and in 1969 Bill left his job at the hospital to become self-employed. 'It was a big step for me but one which I have never regretted,' he said. The new family home at View-Park, Newmachar became the base for the business with the first big coach, a 45 seat 14 year old Burlingham bodied Bedford costing £400 arriving in 1970.

As activities expanded the old hall in Newmachar was bought and used for maintenance. Development of the taxi side saw the addition of two white cars so that, as well as a coach taking a band and guests to a wedding reception both the bride and bridesmaids could be transported in the appropriate style as well.

A new generation

Bill Jnr joined the business as a Partner after passing his driving test on his 17th birthday. In 1976, as the firm continued to grow, son-in-law Ian Urquhart also joined and responsibilities are now divided with Bill Jnr overseeing the engineering side and Ian, the administration. The incentive to move into the holiday business, a key element in today's operation, came in 1977 with the purchase of F, F & F Coaches based in Skene Street, Aberdeen which held tour licences as well as owning two coaches. With increasing coach work the family decided to stop the taxi side of the business and concentrate on developing the private hire and coach holiday side. However in the pre-1980 regulated era, it was not without the occasional battle in the traffic courts. Today Whyte's offer over 280 holidays annually.

With Caetano

There is a long tradition of Caetano coachwork in the Whyte's fleet. The first example was a Bedford back in 1976. Two Alpha bodied Volvo were bought when just 10 months old in 1981 and one of these was to quickly show its durability when it was hired to Stagecoach of Perth for a year. Painted in the famous stripes and fitted with a toilet, it operated on its Aberdeen-Glasgow and Aberdeen-Edinburgh express services. Whyte's Newmachar premises were ideally located to service the Aberdeen end of Stagecoach's rapidly growing express network. In fact the coach was repainted white at the end of the year only for the Perth company to find that they were going to need it for longer after all and it was quickly repainted back into their livery. Whyte's coaches became a frequent sight on Stagecoach work at this time.

The first new Caetanos to join the fleet did so in 1989 in the shape of two Algarve bodied DAF SB2305 49/53 seat executives. The current run of Algarve 2s started in 1995 with a DAF SB3000WS 49 seater with centre sunken demountable toilet and continental door and a MAN 11.190 33 seater. The midicoach included a rear mounted saloon toilet, tinted double glazing, full height continental door and Blaupunkt audio, tv and video system in its specification.

Since then Whyte's has taken three batches of four Algarve 2s mounted on Volvo B10M chassis including the order handed over on 12 January. The new coaches are again 49/53 seaters executives featuring Holdsworth Graffiti moquette, centre sunken toilet and continental door. Blaupunkt audio equipment has been fitted. All are double glazed and have Eberspacher heaters. Air-conditioning is also included in the specification and these systems will be installed by Sutrak at Northampton prior to delivery. This will bring the number of air-conditioned vehicles in the fleet up to ten. Whyte's metallic beige, wine and red livery was applied in SCUK's workshops. The current scheme was introduced in 1993 after staff consultation and was inspired by Bill Jnr's wife. Her father-in-law likes both its simplicity and practicality and it suits the Algarve body-lines well.

Commenting at the handover of the latest batch of coaches Bill Snr said that he was very satisfied with the service that Whyte's Coach exchange for the latest coaches. Bill Snr and one of the company's driver's drove two of the coaches down to Heather on the day of the handover, starting at just after four o'clock in the morning. Reflecting the company's Moquette in the new coaches is Graffiti from Holdsworth.

Tours had received from Salvador Caetano (UK) at Heather. He particularly complemented the stores department saying that they gave good back up and knew their business. 'If we phone in the afternoon, very often we have the item the next morning,' he pointed out. It was a view supported by Bill Jnr who said that Whyte's did not often need support, but it was there when it mattered. 'Its crucial,' he commented.

Talking about the vehicles themselves Bill Snr said that they were 'better value for money.' The build quality was good and that the firm's drivers liked them. The 49 seat layout gave plenty of leg room and there was lots of luggage space as well. 'They are a suitable vehicle for our work,' he said.

Two L-registered Van Hool T815s and a J plate Bova Futura have gone to Salvador Caetano (UK) in part attention to detail, Whyte's had carefully removed their fleetnames and legal lettering from the coaches prior to delivery to Heather. Complementing the company on their quality, Alan Page said that he was confident that each would find buyers within a week.

Whyte's today

Following the purchase of land at Pinkie Farm, Newmachar, and the building of a new garage in 1986, Whyte's now have extensive premises to accommodate, maintain and administer the 20 strong fleet which in addition to the Caetanos includes three Mercedes 33 seaters, a 16 seat Sprinter, a Renault and a Ford Transit. The firm also uses the site as a coach interchange for its feeder services and around 5,000 passengers pass through each year. Vehicle parking is sufficiently spacious to allow 12 coaches to be parked side by side with their locker doors open. Once the new coaches are delivered, Bill Jnr commented that they hoped to get all 14 Algarve 2s lined up for a photograph. The garage roof is high enough to allow double deckers, although, to date Whyte's have not owned one. However Bill Snr pointed out that at 3.55 metres, high floor coaches are not much lower.

As well as local schools work and private hire Whyte's fulfil tours for local newspapers such as The Press & Journal and Evening Express in addition to their own extensive touring programme. Feeder coaches work into Aberdeen from as far afield as Elgin for tours which pick up as far south as Perth before travelling throughout the UK and the continent including Holland, Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Italy.

The development of the oil industry in the north east of Scotland has had a major affect on the local economy. Whyte's occasionally do a little work for the oil companies but their core work remains in tours. Bill Snr recalls that in the boom oil years it was not unknown for an oil company to hire coaches at short notice just to take staff to Glasgow airport for a weekend away. Today the market is much more responsible with the companies asking for quotations. However with the bulk of Whyte's business depending on the middle and older age groups in the local community it has developed more steadily. It has been satisfying for Bill to see how the business has grown over the past 30 years. 'Its not done badly,' he said.

Driveline Specialists

- taking the lead in transmission technology

There are specialists, and then there are specialists. Swinton based Driveline Specialists Ltd not only lives up to the name, it is confident it has taken a lead over the competition through the implementation of computer technology in transmission testing. A considerable sum has been invested recently in developing a computer controlled test programme for ZF Ecomat automatic transmissions and installing an acoustic test cell. The development is unique amongst gearbox and transmission dealers or service agents and even ZF themselves have nothing as comprehensive as what the team at Driveline has devised.

Driveline has been an official ZF service agent since 1989. The business was first established in 1980 at Worsley by ex-Eaton personnel, concentrating on transmissions for HGV, PSV and off-highway vehicles, and its current general manager, Steve Allen, joined in 1983. The company dealt with all makes of gearboxes and rear axles quickly establishing a successful reputation which generated business and soon called for expansion. This led to the need for larger premises, culminating in a move to Swinton during 1986.

The present staffing level is 18, most of whom are highly skilled technicians. Training is provided in-house for Eaton products as Graham Evans, Driveline's technical sales & service manager was a time-served apprentice with the company and spent some years in its research and development department. He is, therefore, eminently qualified to pass on instruction. Any member of staff needing to be updated or trained in ZF products attends any relevant course provided by the manufacturer.

Graham's expertise and

This special cradle was developed by Driveline to allow staff to operate at the most convenient height and position.

knowledge of testing procedures has been a guiding factor in the development of a service area dedicated to ZF Ecomats which allows the company to complete all reconditioning up to Stage III. He designed, along with a local engineering company, a special mounting cradle for the casing which can be rotated and locked in any position to suit the technician stripping or rebuilding the unit. The same partnership also designed the test rig contained in the test cell and worked closely with software developers to produce a comprehensive analysis programme which gives accurate information on every function within an Ecomat transmission. An AC motor was chosen to power the rig because it could easily be controlled by a computer.

Test cycles are operated for two hour, currently in a semi-automatic mode as the operator remains with the computer equipment to switch from one test programme to the next and to manually switch gear ratios or apply the retarder when necessary. The next revision of the software programme will eliminate the need for supervision beyond the initial setting up stage. Once the transmission is properly installed, filled with the correct amount of lubricant and run until it reaches the recommended 80 degrees centigrade operating temperature, it will be possible to engage the test cycle and all the functions will be stepped through automatically. At the end of the test a detailed four-page report is printed out with any areas of failure highlighted for attention.

Test data is automatically logged to an archive database to provide Driveline with a record of the analysis for comparison with any subsequent test of the same unit and for maintaining a complete mechanical history of each transmission handled.

Driveline's test programme begins by running the input speed up to 1,000 rpm and then measuring the current draw, in amps, of the solenoid when engaging each gear. Each measurement is recorded and displayed in either blue or red. Blue results are within established parameters and any that do not tally with prescribed settings highlighted in red. With the input speed remaining at 1,000 rpm, the next two tests are performed. Firstly the inductive sensor is checked for function at both turbine (input) and output, followed by an evaluation of the throttle pressure and load switch.

The next pair of tests

intensively scrutinise oil pressures and temperatures in every gear, cycling through each item at a reduced engine speed of 700 rpm. The same set of tests is then made under full load simulation with an input speed set between 2,000 and 2,500 rpm. Having achieved a high input speed the next step records the flow of oil and its pressure with the lock-up clutch engaged for ten minutes.

Emergency control and PTO checks are optional, depending on the type and application of the transmission and these can be bypassed to the final section of evaluation which measures the efficiency of the retarder and then runs a stall check at 150 amps.

If an oil cooler is fitted to the transmission it may be plumbed into the test rig to ensure it is pressurised to 0.5 bar during operation. Finally, the unit is operated until the temperature reaches 100 degrees centigrade and a leakage test is carried out, checking all joints, sealing faces, bolts, connections and attached equipment, including torque converter space. All pressure plugs are replaced and, depending on the nature of the test, a new or the original oil filter is fitted in place of the test unit.

Transmission fluid used during the testing process is drained from the unit into the sump below and recycled into the main supply. Cleanliness and freedom from contamination is ensured by passing fluid drawn from the sump through three separate filtration processes.

The detailed nature of the test and the accuracy of the results allows Driveline to immediately identify any area where attention may be required. It guarantees reliability for the customer and ensures Driveline's quality standards are of the highest order.

All re-conditioned transmissions are guaranteed for 12 months. Ecomat transmissions all have a two year warranty. Customers can also opt to have their own transmission repaired rather than take a fully re-conditioned service exchange unit. Steve Allen said that this was an area where there was a distinct line between the PSV and HGV industries, particularly in the case of coach operators. He maintained that HGV operators were generally so cost conscious they would insist on having a repair to a transmission and just pay for replacement parts that were required. Coach operators, on the other hand, were more inclined to opt for the security transmission service agents. These can be collected from a service counter or are despatched via carrier services for overnight delivery. Distribution and collection of service exchange transmisat Swinton cover all makes including Eaton, Allison, Rockwell, Scania and Volvo. Customers sending a transmission to Driveline for evaluation can expect a thorough and detailed breakdown of any parts requirements and will be told the cost of completing the job before any action is taken. Units that arrive for attention are drained of oil, washed clean and examined. A full appraisal of costings is worked out and the owner informed of the details. Repair or reconditioning is then carried out only upon instructions from the client.

Units are all logged in when they arrive at Swinton and issued with a job card to ensure complete traceability throughout the process. Records are checked to see if the unit has been serviced before, if so its history can be examined and the technicians know exactly what has been replaced or repaired in the past. Any ZF Ecomat transmission serviced by an official dealer will have been stamped on the casing with an identification code. This can be traced through the network to gain access to records that may be held elsewhere.

Driveline is extremely confident in its own abilities and is proud of the levels of achievement reached by its technicians. Graham Evans said that it was becoming increasingly difficult to find fully skilled or trained personnel and the company was now looking to introduce apprenticeship schemes in order that more young people could be brought up the levels required, not only for purposes of expansion but to take the places of the older, fully skilled technicians when they retired. He admitted that training apprentices was no guarantee of them staying with Driveline but his concerns were that the industry as a whole was becoming de-skilled. By providing this training he believed Driveline was investing in its own future.

The company is also very happy to show customers around the premises to examine the standard of work being carried out. It was evident from B&CB's brief visit that quality and technical ability were of the highest order.

By Martin Cole

A ZF Ecomat transmission installed on Driveline's test rig in an acoustic chamber.

of a fully re-conditioned service exchange unit which they knew would provide them with trouble-free service.

Although Driveline is an official ZF service dealer the company also supply spare parts for other independent transmissions partly handled by Driveline's own vehicle, mainly on local work, and partly by national carriers to ensure same day or next day deliveries are achieved wherever possible.

Transmissions catered for Driveline's computer console and the test rig control panel. Once the software is fully developed the control panel will be redundant and the computer will take full control.

Fleet Additions

T9 for Eavesway

Eavesway Travel of Ashton-in-Makerfield has chosen the Van Hool T9 Alizee DH bodied DAF SB3000 WS for its latest acquisition. It has been specially prepared for Bolton Wanderers FC team travel and was supplied by Arriva Bus & Coach. Finished in a special livery made up from Bolton's team colours, the coach features 32 Royal Comfort Class seats with lap belts, ten tables, rear wash-room, roof mounted air conditioning with climate control, two convertible beds for injured players and a four screen video system. The DAF WS242 Euro 2 engine develops 330 bhp and is coupled to a ZF Ecomat 5HP600 gearbox with foot controlled integral retarder.

Commuter DAFs

Arriva Bus & Coach has supplied five DAF SB3000s with air-conditioned Plaxton Premiere 350 bodies to London Coaches (Kent) for busy commuter services. Each has 53 reclining seats along with tinted double glazing and the specification allows the coaches to be used on sightseeing and hotel transfers between the peaks. ZF automatic gearboxes have been specified to ease the driver's workload in London traffic. 'We pride ourselves on offering the residents of North Kent the best way of commuting to London,' said Transport Manager Graham Wykes. 'Our customers, - 4,000 of them every day - are guaranteed a seat in a high-quality coach.'

The first Plaxton bodied Mercedes Vario O.814D has been delivered to Newmachar Coaches based just outside Aberdeen. It is fitted with a TV and video to keep children entertained on the way to school.

Davy Reid of Newmachar Coaches commented, 'We are mainly using the coach on a contract to carry handicapped children to school and we find that playing a video on the run helps make the journey more pleasant. Teachers find a benefit too, saying that the pupils are more relaxed when they arrive at the school.'

The new 33 seater replaced a three-year-old 709D in the seven strong fleet and the fitment of the TV/video equipment gives Newmachar Coaches a useful plus-point when it comes to using the coach on private hires.

Six Wright bodied Scania Axxess Ultralow buses have replaced double deckers on Chester's two park and ride contracts which are operated by Chester City Transport. They feature 42 seats and have provision for 27 standee passengers and one wheelchair occupant. Neighbouring operator Crosville put three similar vehicles onto its park and ride service just a few weeks before.

Products & Services

Truckmaster additions

Truckmaster Direct, the fast response commercial division of Timax Exhaust Systems has added four new replacement exhaust systems into its range including single and double replacement exhaust box systems for the Volvo B10M Mark 4 coach.

Truckmaster Direct says that it provides a one-stop ordering and next-day direct delivery service on a full range of replacement exhaust systems for the truck, bus and coach, special vehicle and generator plant markets. The range includes Wasey replacement exhausts for which Truckmaster is the main distributor.

The company has also been expanding its complementary selection of heavy-duty clamps, non-asbestos gaskets, rubber mountings, hanging brackets and fitting accessories. Further information is available from Truckmaster Direct on 0990 143416.

Antares web site

Antares (Europe) has established a new web site which, it says, offers an advisory service on all aspects of vehicle auxiliary power electrics. Details will be updated frequently as new product developments and application stories occur while technical explanations can guide the user through the selection process. The company's product range includes battery chargers, inverters, converters, control equipment, split charge and the new Auxiliary System Manager and the site can be accessed under the <http://www.antares.co.uk> address.

Keyfuels on web

CH Jones, operator of the Keyfuels and Diesel Direct services has opened its own web site on the internet. This can be accessed for information on all aspects of the services provided, which vary from document scanning and indexing to card personalisation and third party billing. The company is also offering assistance and advice to its customers and suppliers on the subject of the internet and providing a web site design service. The contact address is <http://www.chjones.co.uk> and the normal Email address is info@chjones.co.uk

TWM has placed an order for an additional 107 ramps from Portaramp.

Integral ramp developed by Portaramp

Portaramp of Thetford, Norfolk, manufacturers of portable lightweight access ramps has just developed an integral ramp for wheelchair access to low floor buses. It is manufactured from an aluminium composite with a total weight of only 9kg. The manually operated ramp, which incorporates DiPTAC recommendations, has a durable non-slip floor covering and a safe weight limit of 300kgs.

Portaramp has also recently received another order from Travel West Midlands for an additional 107 of its Bus & Coach Trio Ramps, bringing the number bought by the operator to 336. The ramps, which weigh just 7kg, are being supplied for fitment to the company's new Wright bodied Volvo B6LE buses. Each unit is made of three panels which fold for storage behind the driver when not in use.

Utopia third eye

Utopia Electronics offers the Third Eye vehicle rear view system which, says the company, offers a comprehensive, cost effective way for drivers to view their surroundings whilst reversing. The unit has been installed in many types of vehicle including coaches and buses. Utopia point out that some operators have made it standard equipment because of the potential dangers of injury and death to pedestrians, as well as costly damage to vehicles and expensive third party claims.

The camera is mounted in a die-cast aluminium casing, shock rated to 9G and offers an extra wide angle lens to enable the driver to have total view of the rear of the vehicle. The camera responds to rapid changes in light conditions and works in light levels as low as 0.1 lux. It is mounted in a waterproof (IP66 rated) housing.

The 5.5 inch black and white monitor is compact, has an auto-contrast control and the facility to take a second camera for external or internal viewing.

A range of accessories for the camera and monitor include a variety of mounting brackets, sun shields and an outer pod (for camera installations) to protect the camera when brush cleaning the vehicle.

The equipment is covered by a full three year warranty and an installation service which operates seven days a week, 24 hours a day is offered. For self installation, a technical support line is available.

Utopia also offers a design service for other vehicle applications such as video recording for safety and security monitoring. Details of the company's services are available from Utopia Electronics, Unit 4, Bramley Business Centre, Station Road, Bramley, Guildford, Surrey, GU5 0AZ. Tel: 01483 894611, Fax: 01483 894633.

ExpoCoach Gearing up

More than 140 stands have already been taken at ExpoCoach '98, this year's major trade show for the industry, which is being held in Hall 1, NEC, Birmingham between 6-8 October.

Amongst the vehicle exhibitors which have already announced their intention to attend are Optare, Moseley (PCV), Marshall, AVE Berkhof, Crest, Salvador Caetano, AW Group, SJ Carlton, Alf Moseley Continental, Bova, Euro Coach Builders, Toyota and Crystals.

The 1998 show will be the biggest in the ExpoCoach series so far with over 200 stands. Visitors will again be able to see many of the regular products and services companies which have supported the event in previous years.

Tourism remains an integral part. A Group Travel Village with over 50 stands will be at the heart of the show. With Albatross Travel Group and Coach Tourism Council giving their support to the event, the organisers plan to have a specially themed area for those involved in arranging excursions or trips to a host of destinations.

Over the last eight years ExpoCoach has grown as more company's have wanted to exhibit. As well as giving suppliers the opportunity to meet existing and potential buyers, the event offers visitors the chance to talk to representatives from a wide range of companies to plan for 1999 and beyond.

Amongst the new features for this year will be an accessible transport area. Already committed are Crest, Ricon, Roeville, AA and FCAV.

Keep your eye on this regular column in the coming months. In it B&CB will bring you all the latest Expo developments as they are announced.
